

Come to Paint with Carolyn Walker via Zoom

Check (at the end of this document) the lovely mountain scape you will be doing with Carolyn.

As a recently retired art teacher, I am eagerly embarking on my 'next chapter'. I am an avid potter and artist and have been given the opportunity to present at three Zoom teachers' conventions this year. The topics were teaching art more closely connected to the curriculum at the Division I, II and III level.

I have worked with adults on paint night style settings both in person and on Zoom meetings, and I'm looking forward to our afternoon together to work on a landscape acrylic painting.

Come and join Carolyn along with other NWARDTA members as you work on an acrylic landscape painting on Monday, March 21 from 1:00 to 4:00 pm (allowing for a break during the session).

The class is free to members but is limited to 15. You will need to register using the email below. You will then receive confirmation along with the Zoom link.

You will also need to gather supplies for the class. Carolyn has made it easier for us by providing an Amazon link for the following kit. You'll see that it's quite affordable. You might also be able to access these supplies locally.

In addition, she would like you to pick up from the Dollar Store:

1/2 inch flat bright brush (see the picture) and
11 x 14 or 12 x 16 canvas (whichever is available)

A tabletop easel is recommended (perhaps you could borrow this or fashion one of your own). Also have available: rags, water, and a white paper plate for a palette.

To register, email Joan at nwardta.president@gmail.com

I am offering an Amazon kit to the first two registrations.

We will be painting the 2-ish hour version of 'Canola Farm', my latest.
